Everybody needs it, of course.

Everybody is going to need it more in the future, too, when the earning capacity is less than during youth or middle-age.

BIG CARNIVAL BOOMING.
Moose Providing Popular Diversion For Crowds—Success of Saturday's Shows.

The second day of the big open-air carnival being held by Willimantic Lodge, No. 1440, I. O. O. F., on the Home Grounds on Pleasant street, saw even more people on the midway than were present Friday. The comment here everywhere was, "I didn't think for a minute you had such a big show ever here." It is undoubtedly one of the biggest affairs of the kind ever given in this part of the state, and so far the attendance has been all that could be desired.

The stands on the midway did a good business Saturday afternoon, and the dance floor was fairly well patronized, in spite of the heat. Wheeler's orchestra rendered a fine dancing program.

In the evening the people came in such numbers that it was a lengthy task to walk down the midway and return. For a short time at the start of the evening there was a little trouble with the electric lighting at the farther end, but it was soon remedied. The dance floor was well filled, and the popular music excellently rendered by the Willimantic American band enticed many onto the floor.

For the balance of the time other and bigger attractions are slated, in addition to those already on the grounds, one comprising 35 people in all. There is no question but that the Moose have provided the biggest thing of the kind ever seen in this city.

Runaway Causes Excitement.

Saturday morning a green horse owned by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company became frightened while hitched in Jackson street and ran down the street, along Maple avenue and up Bellevue street, where he was stopped by Letter Carrier Joseph Paulus.

The hitching rope became tangled about the animal's feet and was broken off. The reins dragged and wound about the wheels, impeding the horse's progress and half way up Bellevue street the seat fell between the wheels in such a way as to make a block and further check the animal's gait. He then began to back and would have been thrown but for the arrival of Mr. Paulus. Jean Gilman was driving the team.

Good Argument for No-Licenses.

There will be another great business in the town court this (Monday) morning. Officials were obliged to begin the collection of tottering and falling drunkards' licenses early Saturday forenoon. If conditions do not change soon, this town will slip into the no-license column next fall.

A DANGER SPOT.

Junction of Broad and Reynolds Streets Not Sufficiently Traffic-Protected.

Miracles happen every day, sometimes several times a day, in Danielson, especially at the junction of Broad and Reynolds streets, where before many moons there is bound to be an automobile smash that will make the town sit up and take notice. The miracles referred to are the half-breath escapes from collisions at the point mentioned. Drivers unfamiliar with the streets glide at high speed down the fine state highway through from Stearns Hill and dash across much-traveled Broad street, of which the view is almost entirely cut off for drivers coming down Reynolds. Time and again residents near the junction of the streets have been witnesses of near-smashes that have taken their breath away. Some drivers have sidestepped cars from six to ten feet in avoiding accidents. The erection of a warning sign midway of the Reynolds street highway has been suggested.

An excerpt from the brief follows: "The state, in its brief, in attempting to establish the fact that an employee of itself, has lost sight of everything but the definition of employee in Section 43 of the compensation act, and the decision upon questions which are unrelated to compensation principles. It has lost sight of the definition of employee in the same section, in which the definition of employee must harmonize of the word 'any' in 'any contract of service' which would include a constructive or quasi contract, of the compensation principle which runs through the Connecticut act, which principle would provide several years ago.
